PETR NOHEL

Prince Philip
Duke of Edinburgh
(genealogical study)
Prince Philip
Duke of Edinburgh
(genealogical study)
key words:

monarchy, Britain, Prince Philip, heraldry, genealogy, noble titles, royal dynasties, Battenberg, Mountbatten, Oldenburg, Windsor, Přemyslids text, illustrations, family trees

© Petr Nohel, 2021

ISBN 978-80-908222-1-4
I dedicate this book to Her Majesty The Queen Elizabeth II and all descendants of His Royal Highness Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

Petr Nohel
CONTENT

1  Personality of Prince Philip  9
   1.1 Basic biographical data  9
   1.2 Titles  10
   1.3 Heraldry  11
   1.4 Ancestors of Prince Philip  13

2  The original family of Prince Philip  17
   2.1 Father's family – Oldenburg dynasty  17
   2.2 Mother's family – Battenberg/Mountbatten family  21

3  Other kinship of Prince Philip  23
   3.1 Prince Philip and Queen Elizabeth II  23
   3.2 Descendants of Prince Philip  24
   3.3 Selected genealogical notes  29

Conclusion  34
[cz] Shrnutí  35
[en] Summary  35
[fr] Résumé  35
About the author  36
Other author 's publications  37
FAMILY TREES

Diagram No. 1 Ancestors’ pedigree of Prince Philip ........................................ 14
Diagram No. 2 Nearest family – Current ruling descendants of Christian IX .......... 16
Diagram No. 3 Oldenburgs on the thrones of Europe ....................................... 18
Diagram No. 4 Family tree of the Battenberg/Mountbatten family ....................... 20
Diagram No. 5 Prince Philip and Queen Elizabeth II as descendants of British kings of the Oldenburg dynasty .......................................................... 22
Diagram No. 6 Descendants of Prince Philip ....................................................... 26
Diagram No. 7 Prince Philip as a descendant of the Přemyslids ......................... 30
Diagram No. 8 Contemporary European rulers and selected heads of formerly ruling houses as descendants of the Oldenburgs .............................. 32
1 PERSONALITY OF PRINCE PHILIP

1.1 Basic biographical data

Prince Philip was born into the Greek royal family on the island of Corfu on 21st June 1921. He was the son of Prince Andrew of Greece and Denmark (1882-1944), the grandson of King George I of Greece (1845-1913) and the great-grandson of King Christian IX of Denmark (1818-1906). He had four older sisters. When he was only a year and a half old, his family was forced to leave Greece for political reasons.

Prince Philip attended The Elms School in Paris, then the Cheam School in England, later the Schule Schloss Salem in Baden, then Gordonstoun School in Scotland, and finally the British Royal Naval College in Dartmouth, England.

During World War II he served in the British Navy and took part in operations in the Indian Ocean, the Mediterranean, Ceylon, Crete, the invasion of Sicily, and in the Pacific. After the war he continued to work in the army as an instructor.

In 1946 he asked Princess Elizabeth for her hand in marriage, and on 20th November 1947 the couple was married at Westminster Abbey. He went on to spend more than seventy years with his wife.

Prince Philip fulfilled his royal duties, excelled with his distinctive sense of humour and actively participated in public life. For example, he was chancellor of several British universities and patron of several hundred beneficial organizations. During his life he was bestowed with almost one hundred orders or other honours and sixteen honorary doctorates.
1.2 Titles

Because Prince Philip was born into the Greek and Danish Royal families, he was entitled Prince of Greece and Prince of Denmark from birth. However, in July 1947 he renounced these titles shortly before the public announcement of his engagement to Princess Elizabeth. As a result, he lost his claim to the Greek and Danish thrones for himself and his descendants.

On 19th November 1947 (the day before the wedding) he was granted the right to be addressed "His Royal Highness" (which otherwise belongs only to the princes of the royal family) by King George VI.

On 20th November 1947 (the morning of the wedding) King George VI granted him three noble titles: Duke of Edinburgh, Earl of Merioneth and Baron Greenwich.

Then, on 22nd February 1957, Queen Elizabeth II granted her husband the title of British prince, which otherwise belongs only to selected persons born into the royal family.

Since then, Prince Philip’s title has taken the following form:

His Royal Highness
Philip
Prince of Great Britain
Duke of Edinburgh
Earl of Merioneth
Baron Greenwich

In practice, however, the most abbreviated form was the one used: His Royal Highness Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

---

1 In full: Prince of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland
1.3 Heraldry

As Prince of Greece and Denmark, Philip used the coat of arms that belonged to the entire Glücksburg branch of the Oldenburg family, which sat on the Greek throne. After renouncing his claims to both of these thrones he was awarded a special personal coat-of-arms, a unique one in British heraldry, in 1949.

The shield is squared and contains in the first and second fields the emblem of the Danish and Greek kings respectively, reflecting Prince Philip’s ancestry; however, the use of this fields after the Prince waived the relevant claims is not common.

In third field is placed the coat of arms of the Mountbatten (originally Battenberg) family, of which Price Philip’s mother Alice (1885-1969) was a member. The use of this field is unusual, because after renouncing his royal claims he adopted the mother’s family name as his surname, but by this did not lead to him becoming part of his mother’s house.

In the fourth field is the emblem of Edinburgh, i.e. the dignity granted to Prince Philip. However, within the Royal Family, it is unusual to use arms referring to titles awarded. Members usually differentiate the coats-of-arms of British kings by specific signs.

Another interesting fact is that the Prince's coat of arms does not include the Oldenburg family's own shield.

The entire coat-of-arms of Prince Philip may be surmounted by a ducal crown as worn by British princes of the Royal Family and a gold helmet with gold and ermine covers otherwise reserved solely to British rulers and their successors in a direct line to the throne. The shield bearers are taken from the Greek (wild man) and Battenberg (golden lion) coats-of-arms. The Prince's personal motto is God is my help.
House of Oldenburg
Kings of Denmark
Kings of Greece
House of Battenberg
Edinburgh
Prince Philip’s coat-of-arms
1.4 Ancestors of Prince Philip

Prince Philip is descended from many royal dynasties. If we look at his ancestors up to the sixth generation, which is contained in the following family tree, we find interrelated people already within the first few generations, most often represented by persons from the dynasties of Oldenburg (highlighted in blue in the following scheme), Hesse (orange), Wettin (green) and Hannover (red). Members of the Battenberg family, which is a morganatic branch of the House of Hesse, are then marked in light orange.

Due to the ancestral kinship of Prince Philip, their number is reduced already in the fourth generation. Prince Philip thus has 2 parents, 4 grandparents and 8 great-grandparents, but only 14 ancestors in the 4th generation (compared to the 16 in the model), 28 ancestors in the 5th generation (compared to the 32 in the model) and 43 ancestors in the 6th generation (compared to the 64 in the model). But in this generation of ancestors, too, we can find members of recurring families or even several siblings (sibling relations are marked with coloured bolts in the scheme).
| Christian IX
| King of Denmark
| 1818-1906 |
| Louise
| Pr. of Hesse
| 1817-1898 |
| Konstantin
| G. Pr. of Russia
| 1827-1892 |
| Alexandra
| Pr. of Saxen
| 1830-1911 |
| Alexander
| Prince of Hesse
| 1823-1888 |
| Julie
| Countess of Hauke
| 1825-1895 |
| Ludwig IV.
| G. Duke of Hesse
| 1837-1892 |
| Alice
| Pr. of G. Britain
| 1843-1878 |
| George I.
| King of Greece
| Prince of Denmark
| 1845-1913 |
| Olga
| Grand Princes of Russia
| 1851-1926 |
| Luis
| Marq. of Milford Haven
| 1854-1921 |
| Victoria
| Princess of Hesse
| 1863-1950 |
| Andrew
| Prince of Greece, Prince of Denmark
| 1882-1944 |
| Alice
| Mountbatten
| 1885-1969 |
| Prince Philip
| Duke of Edinburgh
| 1921-2021 |
Diagram No. 2 – Nearest family – Current ruling descendants of Christian IX
2 The original family of Prince Philip

2.1 Father's family – Oldenburg dynasty

The first king of the Oldenburg family was Christian I (1425-1481), who ruled as King of Denmark, Norway and Sweden. Of the many branches of his descendants, the following three are important to us, which are also illustrated in the following Diagram No. 3.

The primogeniture of the family continued to rule in Denmark and Norway until 1863, when it died out. The second branch of the Oldenburg family are the Dukes of Schleswig-Holstein, who are still pretenders to their duchy. The younger line of this branch, starting with Christian XI (1818-1906), inherited a claim to the Danish throne after the death of King Frederick VII (1808-1863). This line was subsequently divided into the current three separate families ruling in Denmark (Queen Margaret II), Norway (King Harald V) and Greece (former King Constantine II). Prince Philip also descends from this Greek part of the family. The third important branch are Dukes of Holstein-Gottorp. Its first line, descending from Peter I (1728-1762), inherited the throne of the Russian Empire, which they ruled until 1918. Four other members of the younger line ruled as Kings of Sweden, and representatives of the current line of this branch ruled as Grand Dukes in Oldenburg, to which they are still pretenders.

Diagram No. 2 on the opposite page shows the monarchs or pretenders most closely related to Prince Philip. We can see that, in addition to the previously mentioned current rulers, Prince Philip was also closely related to King Philip VI of Spain or to the pretenders to the throne of Hanover (Prince Ernest August) and Baden (Prince Maximilian). Almost all of these persons are the great-grandchildren of Christian IX, as is Queen Elizabeth II too, meaning that Prince Philip was a distant uncle to them.
Diagram No. 3 – Oldenburgs on the thrones of Europe

Legend
- Kings of Denmark
- Kings of Norway
- Kings of Sweden
- Tsars of Russia
- Kings of Greece
- other Oldenburg lands
- Prince Philip

Christians I.
King of Denmark
King of Sweden
King of Norway
1425 – 1481

Johann
King of Norway
1455 – 1513

Frederick I.
King of Denmark
1471 – 1553

Christian II.
King of Denmark
1461 – 1558

Johann II.
D. of Schleswig-Holstein
1545 – 1622

Christian III.
King of Denmark
1503 – 1559

D. of Schleswig-Holstein
1573 – 1627

Frederick II.
King of Denmark
1612 – 1675

Christian IV.
King of Denmark
1648 – 1676

D. of Schleswig-Holstein
1653 – 1728

Frederick III.
King of Denmark
1697 – 1775

Christian V.
King of Denmark
1727 – 1759

Frederick Louis
D. of Schleswig-Holstein
1757 – 1816

Frederick IV.
King of Denmark
1771 – 1784

Christian VI.
King of Denmark
1808 – 1817

Peter August
D. of Schleswig-Holstein
1818 – 1837

Frederick V.
King of Denmark
1818 – 1831

Christian VII.
King of Denmark
1837 – 1844

Frederick Wilhelm
D. of Schleswig-Holstein
1855 – 1863

Christian VIII.
King of Denmark
1844 – 1864

Frederick
Pr. of Schleswig-Holstein
1865 – 1866

Frederick VI.
King of Denmark
1866 – 1885

Christian IX.
King of Denmark
1885 – 1906

Frederick VII.
King of Denmark
1886 – 1905

Frederick Ferdinand
D. of Schleswig-Holstein
1906 – 1934

Christian X.
King of Denmark
1907 – 1972

Christian XI.
King of Denmark
1913 – 1918

Frederick VIII.
King of Denmark
1918 – 1947

Hakon VII.
King of Norway
1905 – 1957

Olaf V.
King of Norway
1918 – 1957

Christian XII.
King of Denmark
1947 – 1952

Frederick IX.
King of Denmark
1952 – 1992

William Frederick
D. of Schleswig-Holstein
1965 – 1972

Hakon VIII.
King of Norway
1992 –

Olav V.
King of Norway
1992 –

Margaret II.
Queen of Denmark
1940 –

Christoph
D. of Schleswig-Holstein
1949 –

Harald V.
King of Norway
1957 – 2018

Prince Philip 1910 – 2017

Kings of Denmark
Kings of Norway
Kings of Sweden
Tsars of Russia
Kings of Greece
other Oldenburg lands
Prince Philip
Diagram No. 4 – Family tree of the Battenberg/Mountbatten family
2.2 Mother's family – Battenberg/Mountbatten family

The family of Battenberg is a morganatic branch of the dynasty of the Grand Dukes of Hesse. It was created by the marriage of Prince Alexander (1823-1888) to Julia, Countess Hauke (1825-1895), who was first created Countess and then, in 1858, Princess of Battenberg (with the dignity Princess/Princess of Battenberg given to her descendants). The family later settled in Great Britain and anglicized its name, translating Battenberg to Mountbatten, and at the same time also giving up their German noble titles.

Their eldest son Louis (1854-1921) was created Marquis of Milford Haven, Earl of Medina and Viscount Alderney in 1917. The current head of the family is his great-grandson George (*1961). The younger son Louis, of the same name, (1900-1979) was created Viscount of Burma in 1946. A year later he was promoted to Earl of Burma, with the subsidiary title Baron Romsey. These titles are also hereditary in the absence of male heirs, so Louis's eldest daughter Patricia (1924-2017), who was married to John Knatchbull, 7th Baron Brabourne, became the second countess. Both titles merged in their son Norton (*1953) who is not only the 3rd Earl of Burma, but also the 8th Baron Brabourne. Another member of the family, Alexander Albert (1886-1960), was created Marquis Carisbrook, Earl Berkhamsted and Viscount Launceston, but did not have any male descendants. Other interesting members of the family included Alexander, Prince of Bulgaria (1857-1893) and his nieces, Queen Luisa of Sweden (1889-1965) and Queen Victoria Eugenie of Spain (1887-1969). Prince Philip was the son of Alice (1885-1969), and thus the grandson of the 1st Marquis of Milford Haven.

We can recognize three families using the name Mountbatten.

1) The original family, titled Mountbatten of Milford Haven.
2) The Knatchbull family, using the title Mountbatten of Burma.
3) The British Royal Family, where the name is used as surname by selected members.
Diagram No. 5 – Prince Philip and Queen Elizabeth II as descendants of British kings and of the Oldenburgs
3 Other kinship of Prince Philip

3.1 Prince Philip and Queen Elizabeth II

As in other ruling families, the marriage between Prince Philip and Queen Elizabeth II was one between relatives. Both of them had a number of common ancestors. Both are descendants of great figures of European history such as the founder of the restored medieval Roman Empire Emperor Charlemagne (747/8-814), the founder of the French Capetian dynasty, King Hugo Capet (939/41-996), or the King of England, William the Conqueror (ca. 1028-1087).

Thanks to familial connections both are also descendants of several saints, such as: St. Louis IX, King of France (1214-1270), St. David I, King of Scotland (1085-1153), St. Margaret, Princess of England (1050-1093), St. Olga, Princess of Kiev (890-969), St. Vladimir I, Grand Duke of Kiev (968-1015), St. Elizabeth, Princess of Hungary (1207-1231), St. Jolanda, Princess of Hungary (1244-1298), St. Olaf II, King of Norway (980-1030), St. Arnulf, Bishop of Metz (580-641), St. Warinus, Bishop of Paris († 677) and St. Liévin, Archbishop of Trier (660-722). Their holy ancestors also include the Czech national saints St. Ludmila, Princess of Bohemia (approx. 860-921) and St. Zdislava of Lemberk, née of Křižanov (1220-1252).

Another interesting fact is that both are descendants of both of their paternal families. On the one hand they are both great-great-grandchildren of Queen Victoria (1819-1901) of the United Kingdom and her husband, Prince Albert of Saxony (1819-1861), so they are cousins and third cousins, and on the other hand they are both descendants of the King Christian IX of Denmark. Here, however, Prince Philip is in the third generation of his descendants, while Queen Elizabeth is in the fourth, as shown in Diagram no. 5.
3.2 Descendants of Prince Philip

Prince Philip has four children, eight grandchildren and, currently, eleven great-grandchildren. Among them are princes and princesses, as well as people with other aristocratic titles, but also people without aristocratic titles. Prince Philip renounced his own birth titles and claims before the wedding, and his wife is sovereign ruler, so all his children are, in theory, followers of Her Majesty the Queen's dignity.

Prince Philip’s eldest son is Prince Charles (*1948), who is the heir to the British throne. As the heir apparent to the former Kingdom of England, he automatically holds the titles of Duke of Cornwall and Earl of Chester. As the heir apparent to the former Kingdom of Scotland, he automatically holds the titles of Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew, as well as the Prince of Scotland, Lord of the Isles and Lord High Steward of Scotland. Although the title of Prince of Wales is awarded exclusively to the heirs to the British throne, its holder does not acquire it automatically, but must be granted to him by sovereign. Prince Charles was created Prince of Wales by Her Majesty the Queen in 1969. He also inherited the titles Duke of Edinburgh, Earl Merioneth and Baron Greenwich after the death of Prince Philip. Prince Charles' wife (the mother of his sons) was Diana Frances, née Spencer (1961-1997), and his second wife is Camilla Rosemary, née Shand (*1947). Both wives, and also Prince Charles, are related, as they are all descendants of the kings of England and Scotland.

The eldest son of Prince Charles is Prince William (*1982), to whom the titles of Duke of Cambridge, Earl of Strathearn and Baron Carrickfergus were awarded prior to his marriage to Catherine, née Middleton (*1982). The couple are also related, as Duchess Catherine is a descendant of the kings of England and Scotland. All of their children are princes and princesses.
The younger son of Prince Charles is Prince Henry (*1984), to whom the titles of Duke of Sussex, Earl of Dumbarton and Baron Kilkeel were awarded prior to his marriage to Rachel Meghan, née Markle (*1981.) The couple are also related, as Duchess Meghan is also a descendant of the kings of England and Scotland. Their only descendant, Archie Harrison, has no title, because the descendants of British princes do not use the second titles of their fathers, which is otherwise common in the British nobility, but at the same time he himself is not styled prince.

The only daughter of Prince Philip is Princess Anna (*1950), who has been married twice: first, in 1973, to the father of her children, and also distant relative, Mark Phillips (*1948); and then, in 1992, to Timothy Laurence (*1955). Her descendants do not hold any titles, as aristocratic titles are primarily inherited from male lines and no titles have been granted to her children either.

Prince Philip's second son is Prince Andrew (*1960), who was awarded the titles of Duke of York, Earl of Inverness and Baron Killyleagh prior to his wedding. The prince's wife was Sarah Margaret, née Ferguson (*1959), again a distant relative, with whom he has two daughters, Princess Beatrice (*1988) and Princess Eugenie (*1990), both of whom also married descendants of kings of England.

The youngest son of Prince Philip is Prince Andrew (*1964), who also married a distant relative, Sophie Helen, née Rhys-Jones (*1965) in 1999. The prince was granted the titles of Earl of Wessex, Earl of Forfar and Viscount Severn. The couple has a daughter, Louise (*2003) and a son, James (*2007), who, exceptionally, bears his father's subsidiary title Viscount Severn.
Diagram no. 6 – Descendants of Prince Philip

ELISABETH II.
*1926
Queen of G. Britain
Duke* of Lancaster of Normandy
* not used in female form

Philip
1921-2021
Prince of Greece*
* titles before marriage of Denmark*
of G. Britain
Duke of Edinburgh
Earl of Merioneth
Baron Greenwich

Charles
*1948
Prince of G. Britain
Prince of Wales
Duke of Cornwall of Rothesay of Edinburgh
Earl of Chester of Carrick of Merioneth
Baron of Renfrew Greenwich
Lord of the Isles
Prince and Great Steward of Scotland
1.00 1981

Diana née Spencer
1961 - 1997
Princess of Wales
Duchess of Cornwall of Rothesay
Countess of Chester
Baroness of Renfrew
Greenwich
2.00 2005

Camilla
née Shand
*1948
Princess of Wales
Duchess of Cornwall of Rothesay
Countess of Chester
Baroness of Merioneth
Greenwich

William
*1982
Prince of G. Britain
Duke of Cambridge
Earl of Strathearn
Baron Carrickfergus

Catherine née Middleton
*1982
Duchess of Cambridge
Countess of Strathearn
Baroness Carrickfergus

oo 2011

Henry
*1984
Prince of G. Britain
Duke of Sussex
Earl of Dumbarton
Baron Kilkeel

Meghan
née Markle
*1981
Duchess of Sussex
Countess of Dumbarton
Baroness Kilkeel

oo 2018

George
*2013
Prince of G. Britain
Princess of G. Britain

Charlotte
*2015 Princess of G. Britain

Louis
*2018
Prince of G. Britain

Archie Harrison
*2019

Lilibet Diana
*2021
3.3 Selected genealogical notes

Of course, Prince Philip was not only a descendant of the kings of Greece and Denmark, but of many other European dynasties, including the rulers of Russia, Hesse, Baden, Saxony, Portugal, Spain, France and many others. We must not forget that he was also a multiple descendant of the rulers of Bohemia. For example, we can find him in the 33rd generation of the descendants of Bořivoj I. and St. Ludmila – the first ruling couple of Bohemia.

Diagram no. 7 shows the following line of descent: Prince Philip was a descendant of King Christian III of Denmark (1503-1559), whose ancestors in the maternal line go as far back as the Luxembourgs on the Bohemian throne, as Christian's mother Anna Brandenburg (1487-1514) was the daughter of Margaret of Saxony (1449-1501), and thus the granddaughter of the Bohemian princess Anna of Habsburg (1432-1462), great-granddaughter of Emperor Charles IV (1316-1378).

Prince Philip, however, was related to all ruling families. As shown in Diagram no. 8, all current European rulers (marked blue), as well as many other heads of formerly ruling houses (orange), are descendants of his own paternal dynasty of Oldenburg (red).
Diagram no. 7 – Prince Philip as a descendant of the Přemyslids
Diagram no. 8 – Contemporary European monarchs and selected heads of formerly ruling houses as descendants of the Oldenburgs
Conclusion

Prince Philip had a distinctive personality, with a strong sense of humour and an extraordinary sense of responsibility. Although he was born into a royal family, he almost immediately experienced the difficulties of immigration and realized that the life of members of ruling and formerly ruling families is neither static nor predetermined.

Although he eventually found his vocation in the British Navy, he had to resign from it soon after his marriage in order to devote himself entirely to service alongside his ruling wife, who is not only the Queen of not only Great Britain and Northern Ireland, but also of the Commonwealth of Nations, as well as the Supreme Governor of the Church of England.

Prince Philip also had to come to terms with some of his children's failed marriages, which were closely monitored by the media. However, according to several testimonies of family members, he has always been a support not only to his wife, but also to all generations of his descendants.

In Prince Philip we lost not only a man who was one of the visible faces of the British monarchy, but also one who sought to modernize it and consistently fulfil the obligations arising from his position.

Although Prince Philip did not live to see his approaching hundredth birthday, his life was rich and fulfilled, mainly because he placed the public interest above his own. Let him rest in peace.
Shrnutí [cz]

Genealogická studie pojednává o princi Philipovi, manželovi britské královny Alžběty II. Všímá si rodových vazeb v rodinách jeho předků i titulatury jeho a jeho potomků. Práce představuje prince Philipa jako potomka mnoha panovnických dynastií, včetně těch českých, i jako příbuzného všech současných panovníků i mnoha hlav bývalých panovnických rodů.

Summary [en]

This genealogical study deals with Prince Philip, the husband of Queen Elizabeth II of the United Kingdom. It describes the family connections of his ancestors as well as his titles and those of his descendants. This work presents Prince Philip as a descendant of many royal dynasties, including the Bohemian ones, as well as a relative of all current rulers and many heads of former ruling houses.

Résumé [fr]

L'étude généalogique parle du prince Philip, l'époux de la reine britannique Elizabeth II. Il traite des liens familiaux dans les familles de ses ancêtres ainsi que ses titres et ceux de ses descendants. L'ouvrage présente le prince Philip comme un descendant de nombreuses dynasties monarchiques, y compris tchèques, ainsi qu'un parent de tous les monarques actuels et de nombreux chefs d'anciennes familles monarchiques.
Petr Nohel, Ph.D. has a long-term interest the genealogy and heraldry of aristocratic families, especially ruling and formerly ruling houses. He also focuses on the theory and development of succession law, monarchical and aristocratic titles, and creates genealogical diagrams, including diagrams of the apostolic succession of consecrated persons.

The author is a member of the following organizations:
- Czech Genealogy and Heraldry Society (since 2004)
- Church Law Society (since 2012)
- European Society for Catholic Theology (since 2016)
- Emperor Karl League of Prayer (since 2017)
- Royal Institute of Political Science (since 2021)
Other selected publications by the author

Petr Nohel – author and co-author of the genealogical attachments
Petr Nohel
Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh (genealogical study)
1st edition

publisher: Royal Institute of Political Science
www.kralovskyn Institut.cz
ISBN 978-80-908222-1-4

Praha 2021